What are union Constitution and By-Laws?
They are the rules and regulations that govern the union, elected and appointed officers, revenue of the union and the welfare of the membership. You can access the Constitution and By-Laws by contacting us.

How will we benefit from joining Unifor?
Workers join unions to gain access to fairness and justice. Contract bargaining ensures that all workers have a say in wages, benefits and working conditions on a regular basis.
Furthermore, a contract gives unionized workers a legal right to grieve improper pay rates, health & safety issues, application of negotiated benefits, unjust treatment or discipline, etc. This process ensures that problems, issues and concerns will not be side stepped, but rather be mandated to be dealt with in very specific time limits.
At work, unionized workers have the benefit of representation from elected and trained workplace Stewards who receive direction and assistance from the Unifor National Representative assigned to your workplace.
Unionized Unifor workers also have access to the full resources of the union and the various departments that assist workers.
They provide the specific expertise and knowledge when required to do so, and is a service available to all Unifor members.
Without a union and a collective agreement, you give management the sole discretion in determining what is fair and just, concerning all of your conditions of employment and without any means to challenge any decision that management makes.

For further information, please contact our Organizing Department
1-877-495-6551
join@unifor.org
Who organizes the union?
The employees form their own union. Usually a committee is formed within the workplace who inform and sign up their co-workers. The committee receives direction and assistance from a Unifor organizer.

What are the legal requirements for certification?
The law requires that at least 45% of the affected employees sign a union membership card within a 90-day timeline. The union then applies to the Saskatchewan Labour Relations Board (SLRB) and if the application is in order, it will order a secret ballot vote.

Can I help my co-workers join the union?
Yes. Organizing a union and participating in one are legal activities and rights, and those rights are protected under the Saskatchewan Employment Act (SEA).

Do I lose anything when I join the union?
No. Once a union applies for a certification vote, the SLRB requires that all terms and conditions of employment are protected and cannot be changed without the union's consent. That means that if the union gets a Yes vote, bargaining would start from your current conditions and move up from there.

Can my employer take any action against me for joining a union?
No. The decision to join is solely up to the individual without any undue influence, threats or coercion from management. Every person is free to join a union of their own choice.

Does the employer ever find out who supported the union?
No. The SLRB guarantees the secrecy of all membership evidence. Employers never find out and never get to see the membership cards.

What happens if an employer violates workers’ rights during an organizing drive?
Notify the union immediately. The union can file an “Unfair Labour Practice Complaint” with the SLRB, who in turn has the authority to order any remedy that they feel is appropriate and addresses any violation of the SEA.

Can management staff belong to the union?
No. The law prohibits people who exercise managerial functions from belonging or interfering with the formation of a union for employees.

What is the function of the union in my workplace?
The employees are the union in the workplace. Union Stewards and other positions are elected to represent the co-workers and to ensure that the company does not violate the contract. As usual, a Unifor National Representative provides assistance, direction, research and education to Stewards and other employees in the workplace. The Unifor National Representative also assists in settling grievances.

What is a collective agreement?
A collective agreement is a legal contract between a union and an employer, covering wages, hours of work, working conditions, benefits, the rights of workers and the union, and includes a procedure to be followed in settling workplace disputes.

Who negotiates the contract?
After a successful organizing campaign, the affected employees meet to put forward proposals for the contract and to elect from amongst themselves their own bargaining committee. The committee, along with your Unifor national representative, would then proceed to meet with the employer to obtain a satisfactory agreement as mandated by their fellow co-workers.

Unifor Representatives direct and lend expertise at all stages of negotiations with full input from the elected bargaining committee at all levels.