Are You or Are You About to Become a Retired Worker?

A retired member is a member of a local union who has ended their employment relationship with a particular employer in the expectation of receiving a pension or retirement income.

Once you have retired from your job, you are automatically a retired member of your local and the national union, and hold “retired member status” under the Unifor Constitution.

Stay Active

For your Union...

The Retired Workers Chapter is a place for you to stay connected to your former co-workers, your union leadership, and the campaigns of the union.

For your community...

Join your fellow Unifor retirees to help make local communities a better place for your family, friends and neighbours to live in. You can make a difference!

For yourself...

Retired Workers Chapters can provide social opportunities for you and your partner. Chapters organize many activities to help you stay active and involved.

Join a Retired Workers Chapter

A Retired Workers Chapter is made up of all members within a local union who have retired from workplaces represented by the local. The Retired Workers Chapter establishes its own direction working with the local and national union. Regular meetings are held to organize social and political activities.

Make your voice heard

At Unifor Retired Workers Chapters and Area Councils members can meet other activists and remain involved in the cause, while also enjoying social and recreational events.

Unifor retired members paved the way for the benefits that working people now enjoy. As a retired member, you understand the need to continue the fight to keep the labour movement strong for all working and retired people. You can make your voice heard through political action and lobbying, show your solidarity by participating in Labour Day parades and rallies, and stand in support of active members on the picket lines.
Unifor for Retired Workers

Unifor has a retired workers department that provides support for local unions and Retired Workers Chapters across the country.

Retired from the job, not the fight!

The union that served you well during your working years is still there for you in retirement.

Retirement is not the end of union activity for members. Retired workers are an important part of Unifor’s political and community activities.
